Activity in the JIN Program Office

Activities this week centered on developing a request for proposals for the upcoming Byrne Grant period and refining the budget and strategic plan for the Board's September report to the Governor, the Legislature and the Supreme Court.

Summary Offender Profile

The application is not working, a state that interferes somewhat with conducting a pilot deployment. Templar has promised to complete an investigation of the problem by Monday, and also to make a proposal on the level of effort to create an XML interface for the application, which would enable delivery of the product in a more user-friendly manner.

I will present the results of the pilot study to the Technical Advisory Group on July 16 and then feed any recommendations from them into the Board on July 20.

Homeland Security Grant

I participated in EMD's review of the DHS proposals for information sharing projects—an exercise that included the proposal that I had put together with DOL for automation of the firearms licensing process.

The state received twenty-two applications, and my proposal was not selected as one of the top three. This was due, it seems, to the lack of a "first response" component. Although the language of the announcement focused on public safety and information sharing, it was clear from the discussion that emergency management is foremost on the state's agenda.

Miscellaneous

- ? I briefed Chief Denise Turner, from the King County Sheriff's office on JIN issues. She is Chief Pat Lee's replacement as the WASPC appointee to the Board.
- ? I discussed JIN planning and the future of SOP with Cammy Webster, DIS.
- ? I sent a draft contract for updating the RCW Charge Table to include the 2004 session laws. I hope to have the work completed in 2-4 weeks.
